Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 1 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Group I (claims 1, 10) is directed towards a digital printing press/method capable of extracting XSL objects from a PPML workflow, classified in 715/517.

Group II (claims 2-5) is directed towards a method for laying out a document page with at least one empty copy hole and merging a second document to fit within this copy hole., classified in 715/523

Group III (claims 6, 15) is directed towards a method for rendering a second document to merge with a first document to produce a plurality of print item with the rendered second document appearing in at least one copy hole of successive said print items, classified in 715/517.

Group IV (claim 7) is directed towards a type of print run data comprising a first and second document, classified in 358/1.15.

Group V (claims 8, 9, 16-17) is directed towards a system/method for designing/generating a plurality of PPML pages and formatting the pages by abstracting a plurality of copy holes in a PPML page environment into a second page environment, classified in 715/522.

Group VI (claims 11-14) is directed towards a method of operating a digital press for a print run involving receiving a PPML document, parsing for a PPML MARK document, generating a rendered document, and merging said rendered document into the PPML document.

Group VII (claim 18) is directed towards a graphics tool capable of generating PPML pages with at least one copy hole, classified in 715/513.

Group VIII (claim 19) is directed towards a manager component for formatting pages by abstracting a plurality of copy holes in a PPML page environment into a second page environment, classified in 715/513.

Group IX (claim 20) is directed towards a document comprising XSL language for formatting XSL-FO document and a PPML document with the XSL-FO inside, classified in 715/515.

Group X (claims 21-25) is directed towards a method for outputting documents involving putting rendered dynamic content to produce a second document into domains of a first document, classified in 358/540.

Group XI (claims 26-30) is directed towards a method for inserting dynamic content that flows between pages in a source document in the sequence of domains in another source document, classified in 715/515.

The species are independent or distinct because they are in different search areas and/or have different inventions claimed therein. There would be a burden going through and finding each and everyone of the claimed inventions due to the amount of searching that would be needed to be done.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).
